POLITICAL FIELD DAY IN AMHERST

government on a paying basis as far as possible. However, this was not necessary. And he declared himself in favor of putting on the roads not only the convicts, but also those serving out sentences in the county jails.

Both Claim County.

As stated, the crowd did not manifest much interest in the speaking. The friends of both Senator Martin and Governor Montague are claiming this county. The odds are probably in favor of Montague.

In the gubernatorial fight it will be close between Willard and Swanson, with the odds in favor of Swanson. This was, however, the first appearance of Captain Willard here to-day, and even his opponents say that he made many friends to-day.

Montague and Mann Speak at Chatham

Judge Samuel W. Williams Also Addresses the Large Crowd.

(Special To The Times-Dispatch.)
CHATHAM, Va., June 19.—Governor A. Montague and Senator J. Mann, in the States campaign, made the first speech of the campaign in the Opera House here to-day, which was filled with citizens from all parts of the county and Danville. Many ladies were present.

Judge James C. Williams, in a short speech, introduced the Governor, who was loudly cheered as he came forward. The Governor discussed the justice of the primary election, rights of the people and honest ballots; that he believed in a government of the people, for the people and by the people; that he had no machine or political bosses, and had at no time played the part of a political boss.

He reviewed the Virginia debt settlement, showing that the debt owed Virginia was for money borrowed by the Commonwealth and loaned the United States and refuted the statements that one million seven hundred thousand dollars had been converted into the State treasury, but that only five and one-half dollars had been.

He then read the paragraph contained in the junior senator's circular letter, in which Senator Martin said that he did not believe the fair-minded people of Virginia would displace an experienced officer for one with experience.

Here he took up the junior senator's first election, comparing Senator Martin's experience with that of Huntton, Conrad and Lee. His tribute to the latter was received with outbursts of applause. He referred to the statements about his having made so many promises that he had had pardoned one-third less than Governor McKinney, who had pardoned fewer than any Governor since the war.

He explained vetoing the Confederate pension measure, at the same time pointing out the greater benefits to the old soldiers and pensioners presented by a statement that became a law a few days thereafter with his signature. He did not come to appeal to any class of citizens, and here reviewed his official career, saying he had strived to serve all alike, first come first served. He closed with a reference to a statement that if elected senator he would wrap his toga about him and stand on his dignity. He left his candidacy with the people, and if they wished to see him nominated that they must see their friends and organize.

Governor spoke more than one hour and was frequently interrupted with outbursts of applause. The spirit of the meeting was in sympathy with the speaker and will result in much good for him.

Judge W. H. Mann was then introduced by E. B. Boyd and in a very short while had captivated his audience with his humorous wit. He spoke of his opponents in a manner most complimentary, and said all he asked them was to please let him alone. He then referred to the bill he introduced, and stated that it was passed by a Democratic Legislature and signed by a Democratic Governor and it was a Democratic measure throughout.

His speech was a most happy hit, and will win many votes. Many who had been skeptical in the past were out spoken in their praise of the Judge to-day, and will heartily support him if nominated.

Judge Samuel W. Williams was the last speaker of the day, and in a short, but well expressed speech, presented his claims in a very forcible manner. He stated that he was the only candidate so far for any office from the Southwest and hoped the people of the Eastern part of the State would look upon his candidacy favorably; that he stood on a single book list and criticized Attorney-General as a senatorial district. Mr. J. N. Struble, his opponent, was present also, but did not make a speech. Hears will carry Essex by a large majority.

Small-Pox Prevents Court at Boynton

Judge Barksdale Does Not Care to Expose Himself on Eve of Marriage.

(Special To The Times-Dispatch.)
BOYNTON, VA., June 19.—It has been now about two weeks since the last case of smallpox broke out in town, and the three who have had it are almost well. They are out in the country, where they are guarded. The camp for the suspects is two and a half miles from town, and not a single new case has as yet developed, and the citizens believe the disease is under control, and the danger of its becoming an epidemic has passed. A negro from the North has broken out with smallpox some six miles south of here.

To-day is the day for the meeting of the County Court of Mecklenburg, but Judge Barksdale wrote a member of the bar here that he expected to be married soon, and didn't wish to be away from home in any way to smallpox, and for that reason he would not hold court at this time.

A farmer suggested to me to-day that I remind the State Committee that, naming a day for the meeting of the primary, they do not appoint Monday or Tuesday as the primary in the tobacco section, as the farmers would be busy on those days, filling up their barns with tobacco for curing that week. This farmer said that he had written to the committee, but he has written to a friend in town that he would not come under the circumstances.
